DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

the species of Figures 1 and 7, wherein the test unit is upstream of the main unit; and the species of Figure 13, wherein the test unit is downstream of the main unit.

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

2. The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Claim 10 corresponds to the species of Figures 1 and 7;

Claim 11 corresponds to the species of Figure 13.

All other claims appear to be generic with respect to this distinction.

3. The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: claims 10 and 11 lack unity of invention a posteriori, because the common subject matter (i.e. – that set forth in claim 7) does not make a contribution over the prior art.

See, for instance, US Patent 6,752,166, which discloses a mass flow control device comprising a flow control component which has in a channel through which a fluid flows: a flow detector (component of MFC 141, see US Patent Application Publication 2002/0198668 which is incorporated into the disclosure of the '166 patent by reference) for detecting a mass flow and outputting a flow signal, a flow control valve (component of element 141) mechanism for controlling the mass flow by altering a valve aperture by means of valve drive signals, and which controls the flow control valve mechanism based on an externally input flow set signal and the flow signal (see FIG 1 of the '668 PGPub), wherein the mass flow control device is characterized by comprising a deviation measurement/control component which has in the channel: a first opening and closing valve (523) for opening and closing the channel; an accumulator having a certain volume (col. 5 lines 25-29); and a pressure detector (521) for detecting a pressure of the fluid and outputting a pressure detection signal, and controlling the first opening and closing valve and the accumulator and the pressure detector to perform a mass flow test operations (see control schematic of FIG 2).

4. A telephone call was made to the office of Steve Beyer on 8/19/2008 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.
